Known

I want to be known

Not as a woman who worries

But as a woman who prays

Not as a woman who criticises

But as a woman who encourages

Not as a woman who complains

But as a woman who praises

Not as a woman who finds fault

But as a woman who looks for the good.

Not as a woman who holds grudges

But as a woman who forgives

Not as a woman embittered

But as a woman at peace

Known not for display but for worship

Not for anger but for acceptance

Not for pride but for humility

Not for fear but for courage

Not for hatred but for love

Not as a woman who lives behind walls

But as a woman who basks in the love of her God.

Let me be known for You, Lord.

Only for You.
